

KESS PASSAGE

Ali Hassani Mwinyi was the second President of Tanzania who served from 1985- 1995. He was born at Kivule village, Mkuranga district in Coast region. He was the only male child out of five in his family. His parents shifted to Zanzibar when he was young. He attained his primary education at Mangapwani primary school and secondary education at Dole secondary school both found in Zanzibar.

He is remembered for economic transformation of our country by introducing the policy of Free Market Economy. Through this policy he reduced restrictions of importing goods and encouraged private enterprises. This made him to be nicknamed as “Mzee Rukhusa”. Ali Hassani Mwinyi also re-introduced multiparty system in 1992 which was an important step in the growth of democracy in our country.

In November 2023, Ali Hassani Mwinyi was hospitalized for chest illness. He died of lung cancer at Mzena hospital in Dar es salaam, on 29th February 2024 at the age of 98 years. His body was buried on 2nd March 2024, at Mangapwani village in Zanzibar.

KESS PASSAGE

Ali Hassani Mwinyi was the second President of Tanzania who served from 1985- 1995. He was born at Kivule village, Mkuranga district in Coast region. He was the only male child out of five in his family. His parents shifted to Zanzibar when he was young. He attained his primary education at Mangapwani primary school and secondary education at Dole secondary school both found in Zanzibar.

He is remembered for economic transformation of our country by introducing the policy of Free Market Economy. Through this policy he reduced restrictions of importing goods and encouraged private enterprises. This made him to be nicknamed as “Mzee Rukhusa”. Ali Hassani Mwinyi also re-introduced multiparty system in 1992 which was an important step in the growth of democracy in our country.

In November 2023, Ali Hassani Mwinyi was hospitalized for chest illness. He died of lung cancer at Mzena hospital in Dar es salaam, on 29th February 2024 at the age of 98 years. His body was buried on 2nd March 2024, at Mangapwani village in Zanzibar.